

Women Teaching Girls - a two hour interactive workshop

Attend the workshop or bring it to your school.

In order to help the girls in our classrooms we must assist girls to learn about and understand themselves. This knowledge can help us design experiences that will lead them to live up to their potential. The self-knowledge and understanding they gain may become powerful tools that can help them find meaning and direction in life and make important choices.

Through identifying areas of personal potential, teachers and students have more awareness to help make decisions on subjects to study, career choices, leisure time activities and future plans or goals.

The Women Teaching Girls workshop draws upon eleven self-paced training modules for teachers who care about the girls in their classroom.

- 1. The female brain
- 2. Girl-friendly classrooms
- 3. A girl's need for social interaction
- 4. Risk-taking and problem solving
- 5. Girls and difficult subjects
- 6. Good girl syndrome
- 7. Girls self-esteem and confidence
- 8. Empowering girls
- 9. Teaching girls who struggle
- 10. Girls and exam anxiety
- 11. Girls who try too hard
- 12. Bonus module - overcoming barriers to girls
